LIBRARY TO HOST “ARTS AT THE PLAZA” ON SEPTEMBER 9

HIGH POINT, N.C. (August 8, 2017) – On Saturday, September 9, the High Point Public Library will host “Arts at the Plaza” from noon – 3:00 p.m. in the Arts and Education Plaza and first floor lobby. The event will consist of dance performances, crafts and a collaboration of music and painting on the same stage at the same time. Classically trained violinist Marta Richardson, a UNCG School of Music graduate and former member of the Greensboro Symphony, and painter Mariyah Sultan, who has had work displayed at Art Basel, on HBO and North Carolina, Miami and New York galleries, will connect art and music in a postmodern performance.

This event is free and open to the public. No registration is required. For more information, contact Research Associate Maxine Days at 336.883.3671 or maxine.days@highpointnc.gov.
