HIGH POINT FIRE DEPARTMENT KICKS OFF FIRE PREVENTION WEEK AT THE HIGH POINT FARMERS MARKET

HIGH POINT, N.C. (September 27, 2017) – The High Point Fire Department will kick off Fire Prevention Week at the High Point Farmers Market on Saturday, October 7 from 9:00 a.m. to noon. Fire fighters will be there along with a fire truck, fire prevention trailer, interactive fire safety house and giveaways for children. There will also be a raffle for a Farmers Market gift basket. National Fire Prevention Week is October 8 – 14.

The Farmers Market is held every Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. While the High Point Public Library parking lot is under construction, the Market will take place across North Elm Street in the BNC parking lot. Vendors offer a wide variety of fresh local produce and baked goods, and the High Point University School of Health Sciences is on site each Saturday to provide free health screenings. EBT payment is now accepted at the Market Manager's produce booth.

For more information about the Farmers Market, contact Market Manager Lee Gann at 336.689.4463 or theleegann@gmail.com.
